Each of us should consider the attention to the state language as the attention to independence, respect and devotion to the state language as respect and devotion to the motherland, and make such a view a rule of our life. We must start this noble movement from ourselves, our families and communities, show respect for our native language, traditions and values, and show our love for the Motherland in practice.

Shavkat Mirziyoyev,

President of the Republic of Uzbekistan

1. INTRODUCTION

It is not in vain that our ancestor Alisher Navoi narrated the proverb "Attention to the language, attention to the people". Attention to the language, which began long ago, has not lost its prestige at the same time. As before, our native Uzbekistan has its own language, which our country achieved even before independence. The fact that our country gained the state language was the tree of independence. Let's talk about our language, which is a means (cause) to reach the mat. Let's also talk about language education and learn about language disasters and their harms.

There is a saying among our people that language is the spiritual mirror of the nation. Language is not only a tool for the problem, but also the culture, customs, way of life and history of the people. Respect for the languages of different peoples, in turn, promotes mutual understanding and communication. It is because of language that humanity is proud to belong to this or that nation. Therefore, recognition and respect for all languages is the only guarantee of peace.

Language rises first and foremost with culture. His impressive power is incomparable. Language is the history, culture, way of the people. Because of this sacred, sacred language, the hands are united and the bonds of friendship are connected. As our great ancestor Alisher Navoi said, "Language is the key to the heart and know the key word of the heart." What we say is an expression of our thoughts, and our kind language is an expression of kindness.

It should be noted that the granting of Uzbek the status of the state language was one of the important steps of our people on the path to national independence. During the years of independence, as in all spheres of life in our country, significant changes have taken place in the development of our language. The Uzbek language, which we are proud of, has gained an international reputation. The participation of the President of the Republic of Uzbekistan Shavkat Mirziyoyev in the 75th session of the United Nations General Assembly, not in one of the six official languages, but in Uzbek, is a clear proof of the above.

Teacher Abdullah Qahhor said that after the October Revolution, the convergence of our language with the living language of the people was a great achievement of our literature. So, wouldn't it be a crime to alienate that achievement from our living language? It is time to talk seriously about the purity and richness of our language. We hope that we will be able to raise it to the level of a conference or even a plenum, listen to the speeches of our brilliant writers, experts in this field, heads of relevant organizations, and get their advice to guide our future work.

Conclusion.

All in all, there are many national heritages left by our ancestors for future generations. Works that call for the harmony of spiritual and cultural life, scientific and cultural heritage inspire our generation to perfection, unity and nobility. Therefore, we must pay more attention to them, strengthen the independence of our country and strengthen the foundation of our national culture through the instructions given to them.
