

Advancements in AI for Medical Imaging: Transforming Diagnosis and Treatment

Zakaria K. D. Alkayya, Ashraf M. H. Taha, Qasem M. M. Zarandah, Basem S. Abunasser, Alaa M. Barhoom and Samy S. Abu-Naser*

PhD. Candidate University Malaysia of Computer Science & Engineering (UNIMY), Cyberjaya, Malaysia

*Professor of Artificial Intelligence, Department of Information Technology, Faculty of Engineering and Information Technology, Al-Azhar University, Gaza, Palestine
abunaser@alazhar.edu.ps

Abstract: The integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) into medical imaging represents a transformative shift in healthcare, offering significant improvements in diagnostic accuracy, efficiency, and patient outcomes. This paper explores the application of AI technologies in the analysis of medical images, focusing on techniques such as convolutional neural networks (CNNs) and deep learning models. We discuss how these technologies are applied to various imaging modalities, including X-rays, MRIs, and CT scans, to enhance disease detection, image segmentation, and diagnostic support. Additionally, the paper addresses the challenges faced in AI-driven medical imaging, including data quality, model interpretability, and ethical considerations. By examining recent advancements and real-world case studies, this paper provides insights into the current state of AI in medical imaging and its potential future directions. The findings highlight the ongoing evolution of AI technologies and their crucial role in advancing medical diagnostics and treatment strategies.

Keywords: Advancements, AI, Medical Imaging, Transformation, Diagnosis, Treatment

I. Introduction to AI in Medical Imaging

The application of Artificial Intelligence (AI) in medical imaging is revolutionizing the field of healthcare by enhancing the capabilities of imaging technologies and improving diagnostic accuracy. AI, particularly through machine learning and deep learning algorithms, is increasingly integrated into medical imaging processes to analyze and interpret complex visual data[1-4].

Machine learning, a subset of AI, involves training algorithms on large datasets to recognize patterns and make predictions based on new data. In medical imaging, these algorithms are trained on diverse image datasets, enabling them to identify and classify features within medical images, such as tumors, lesions, and anatomical structures. Deep learning, a more advanced form of machine learning, utilizes neural networks with many layers (deep neural networks) to process and analyze images with high precision[5-8].

AI techniques are applied across various imaging modalities, including X-rays, magnetic resonance imaging (MRI), computed tomography (CT) scans, and ultrasound. For example, AI algorithms can enhance image quality, detect abnormalities, and automate routine tasks such as image segmentation and measurement. These capabilities facilitate earlier and more accurate diagnoses, reduce the workload of radiologists, and support personalized treatment plans[9-10].

The integration of AI in medical imaging not only accelerates the diagnostic process but also aids in predictive analytics, enabling healthcare providers to anticipate patient outcomes and tailor interventions accordingly. As AI technology continues to advance, its role in medical imaging is expected to expand, further enhancing diagnostic capabilities and improving patient care.

II. Technologies and Techniques

The field of medical image analysis has been significantly advanced by various AI technologies, particularly through the application of machine learning and deep learning algorithms. Among these, Convolutional Neural Networks (CNNs) and deep learning models are the most prominent, owing to their effectiveness in handling complex image data[11-14].

2.1 Convolutional Neural Networks (CNNs)

CNNs are a class of deep learning algorithms specifically designed for processing grid-like data, such as images. They are structured to automatically and adaptively learn spatial hierarchies of features from images through convolutional layers, pooling layers, and fully connected layers[15-18].

- Convolutional Layers: These layers apply filters to the input image to create feature maps, detecting edges, textures, and patterns. Each filter captures different aspects of the image, allowing the network to identify crucial features for further analysis[19-20].

- Pooling Layers: Pooling operations, such as max pooling or average pooling, reduce the spatial dimensions of the feature maps while retaining the most important information. This reduction helps in achieving computational efficiency and reducing overfitting[21-23].

- Fully Connected Layers: After convolution and pooling, the resulting feature maps are flattened and passed through fully connected layers, which perform the final classification or regression tasks based on the extracted features[24-25].

CNNs have demonstrated exceptional performance in tasks like image classification, object detection, and segmentation in medical imaging, enabling accurate identification of anomalies such as tumors or lesions.

2.2 Deep Learning Models

Deep learning models, particularly those involving architectures beyond CNNs, include various advanced techniques that further enhance image analysis capabilities[26]:

- Recurrent Neural Networks (RNNs): While primarily used for sequential data, RNNs and their variants (like Long Short-Term Memory networks) can be employed in dynamic medical imaging scenarios, such as analyzing temporal changes in imaging sequences over time.

- Generative Adversarial Networks (GANs): GANs consist of two networks—a generator and a discriminator—that are trained adversarially. GANs are used for tasks such as image enhancement, denoising, and generating synthetic medical images to augment training datasets.

- Transfer Learning: This technique involves leveraging pre-trained models on large datasets and fine-tuning them on specific medical imaging tasks. Transfer learning is particularly useful in medical imaging due to the high computational cost of training deep networks from scratch and the often limited availability of labeled medical image datasets.

- U-Net and Variants: U-Net is a specific architecture designed for medical image segmentation. It features an encoder-decoder structure with skip connections, which effectively captures both high-level and low-level features to delineate structures and abnormalities in images.

These technologies and techniques collectively contribute to the advancement of AI in medical imaging by enhancing image quality, enabling precise diagnostics, and automating complex analysis tasks. As these algorithms continue to evolve, their integration into clinical practice promises to further improve the accuracy and efficiency of medical image analysis.

III. Applications

AI has a wide range of applications in medical imaging, significantly improving diagnostic processes and treatment planning. Key areas of application include tumor detection, image segmentation, and diagnostic support[27]:

3.1 Tumor Detection

AI algorithms, particularly those based on deep learning, have shown remarkable success in detecting tumors across various imaging modalities. Convolutional Neural Networks (CNNs) are commonly used to analyze medical images and identify cancerous growths. For instance:

- Mammography: AI models can assist in detecting breast cancer by analyzing mammograms for signs of tumors or microcalcifications. These models can highlight potential areas of concern, improving early detection rates and aiding radiologists in their diagnostic work.

- Lung Cancer: In chest CT scans, AI algorithms can identify nodules and assess their likelihood of malignancy. By detecting subtle patterns and changes over time, AI can help in the early diagnosis and monitoring of lung cancer.

3.2 Image Segmentation

Image segmentation is crucial for delineating specific structures or abnormalities within medical images. AI-driven segmentation techniques improve the accuracy and efficiency of this process[28]:

- Organ Segmentation: AI models can segment organs such as the liver, kidneys, or heart from CT and MRI scans, facilitating precise anatomical measurements and planning of surgical interventions.

- Lesion Segmentation: In oncology, AI algorithms can segment lesions from surrounding tissues, enabling detailed analysis of tumor size, shape, and boundaries. This is particularly useful in assessing treatment response and planning radiotherapy.

- Functional Imaging: In modalities like PET or functional MRI, AI can segment areas of abnormal activity, aiding in the diagnosis of neurological disorders or assessing brain function.

3.3. Diagnostic Support

AI provides valuable support to radiologists and clinicians in various diagnostic tasks[29]:

- Automated Reporting: AI systems can generate preliminary reports based on image analysis, highlighting key findings and suggesting possible diagnoses. This reduces the time required for manual report generation and helps in streamlining the workflow.

- Predictive Analytics: AI can analyze historical imaging data and patient records to predict disease progression or treatment outcomes. For instance, predictive models can estimate the likelihood of disease recurrence based on imaging patterns and patient demographics.

- Decision Support Systems: AI-based decision support tools assist clinicians in interpreting complex imaging data by providing evidence-based recommendations. These systems can integrate with Electronic Health Records (EHRs) to offer a comprehensive view of patient information and suggest optimal treatment pathways.

Overall, the integration of AI into medical imaging enhances diagnostic accuracy, reduces manual workload, and supports personalized treatment planning. As these technologies continue to evolve, their applications are likely to expand, further transforming the field of medical imaging and improving patient care.

IV. Challenges and Limitations

While AI has the potential to greatly enhance medical imaging, several challenges and limitations must be addressed to fully realize its benefit[30]

4.1. Data Quality and Availability

The effectiveness of AI models depends heavily on the quality and quantity of training data. Key issues include[31-34]:

- Data Scarcity: High-quality labeled medical image datasets are often limited, particularly for rare conditions. This scarcity can hinder the development and validation of robust AI models.

- Data Variability: Variations in imaging protocols, equipment, and patient demographics can affect data consistency. AI models trained on heterogeneous datasets may struggle to generalize across different settings or populations.

- Annotation Accuracy: Accurate labeling of medical images is crucial for training AI models. Errors or inconsistencies in annotations can lead to unreliable model performance and diagnostic inaccuracies.

4.2. Model Interpretability

Understanding how AI models make decisions is essential for clinical acceptance and trust. Challenges in interpretability include[35-37]:

- Black-Box Nature: Many deep learning models, particularly complex neural networks, operate as "black boxes," making it difficult to understand how they arrive at specific conclusions. This lack of transparency can complicate the validation of model predictions and their integration into clinical practice.

- Explanation Methods: While techniques like saliency maps and attention mechanisms provide some insights into model decision-making, they may not always offer a comprehensive understanding of underlying processes.

4.3 Ethical and Regulatory Concerns

The deployment of AI in medical imaging raises several ethical and regulatory issues[38-39]:

- Bias and Fairness: AI models may inadvertently learn biases present in training data, leading to disparities in diagnostic accuracy across different demographic groups. Ensuring fairness and equity in AI applications is a critical concern.

- Data Privacy: Handling and sharing sensitive medical data must comply with privacy regulations such as HIPAA (Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act) and GDPR (General Data Protection Regulation). Safeguarding patient confidentiality while utilizing large datasets is essential.

- Clinical Validation: AI models must undergo rigorous validation to ensure they perform reliably in clinical settings. This includes conducting prospective studies and clinical trials to assess model efficacy and safety.

4.4 Integration and Adoption

Integrating AI tools into existing clinical workflows presents several challenges[40-41]:

- User Training: Radiologists and clinicians need training to effectively use AI tools and interpret their outputs. Adequate education and support are necessary for successful adoption.

- Interoperability: AI systems must integrate seamlessly with existing imaging technologies and electronic health records (EHRs). Compatibility issues can hinder the smooth implementation of AI solutions.

- Regulatory Approval: Gaining regulatory approval for AI applications involves demonstrating that models meet safety and effectiveness standards. Navigating the regulatory landscape can be complex and time-consuming.

Addressing these challenges is crucial for advancing the field of AI in medical imaging and ensuring that these technologies deliver reliable and equitable benefits to patients and healthcare providers.

V. Future Directions

The field of AI in medical imaging is rapidly evolving, with several emerging trends and advancements poised to further enhance its impact. Key future directions include[42]:

5.1 Enhanced Model Performance

- Advanced Architectures: Continued development of sophisticated deep learning architectures, such as transformers and self-supervised learning models, promises to improve the accuracy and robustness of AI systems in medical imaging. These models may offer better performance in detecting subtle abnormalities and improving image resolution.

- Multimodal Integration: Combining data from multiple imaging modalities (e.g., CT, MRI, PET) with clinical data can provide a more comprehensive understanding of patient conditions. AI models that integrate multimodal data are expected to enhance diagnostic accuracy and treatment planning.

5.2 Personalization and Precision Medicine

- Tailored AI Solutions: AI systems are likely to become more personalized, adapting to individual patient characteristics and medical histories. This could lead to more precise diagnostics and treatment recommendations tailored to specific patient profiles[43].

- Genomics and AI: Integrating genomic data with medical imaging can facilitate the development of AI models that predict disease risk and treatment response based on genetic information. This approach supports the broader trend of precision medicine.

5.3 Real-Time and Intraoperative Applications

- Real-Time Analysis: Advances in computing power and algorithm efficiency will enable real-time image analysis during diagnostic procedures and surgeries. This could provide immediate feedback and assist clinicians in making timely decisions[44].

- Intraoperative Imaging: AI-driven tools may enhance intraoperative imaging techniques, such as those used in minimally invasive surgeries. Real-time AI analysis could improve the accuracy of surgical navigation and decision-making.

5.4 Improved Interpretability and Trust

- Explainable AI: Development of techniques for explainable AI aims to make model predictions more transparent and understandable. Enhanced interpretability will help clinicians trust and effectively utilize AI systems in their practice[45].

- Interactive AI Tools: Future AI tools may offer interactive features that allow clinicians to query models and visualize how different factors influence predictions, further aiding in clinical decision-making.

5.5 Broader Clinical Integration

- Seamless Integration: Future AI systems will likely integrate more seamlessly with electronic health records (EHRs) and other clinical workflows. This integration will facilitate the incorporation of AI insights into routine clinical practice and improve overall healthcare efficiency.

- Cross-Disciplinary Collaboration: Increased collaboration between AI researchers, clinicians, and regulatory bodies will drive innovation and ensure that AI technologies meet clinical needs and safety standards[44].

5.6 Addressing Ethical and Regulatory Challenges

- Bias Mitigation: Ongoing research will focus on developing methods to detect and mitigate biases in AI models, ensuring fair and equitable outcomes across diverse patient populations.

- Regulatory Evolution: As AI technologies advance, regulatory frameworks will need to evolve to address new challenges and ensure that AI tools are safe and effective for clinical use[45].

In summary, the future of AI in medical imaging holds exciting potential for enhancing diagnostic capabilities, personalizing patient care, and integrating AI more deeply into clinical workflows. Continued research and innovation will be crucial in addressing current limitations and unlocking new possibilities in this dynamic field.

VI. Case Studies

6.1 AI in Mammography for Breast Cancer Detection

A notable case study involves the use of AI for breast cancer detection in mammography. Researchers at Google Health developed a deep learning model to analyze mammograms and detect breast cancer with high accuracy. The study, published in Nature in 2020, demonstrated that the AI model outperformed human radiologists in detecting breast cancer and reducing false positives and false negatives. This model was trained on a large dataset of mammograms and achieved a significant reduction in diagnostic errors, highlighting AI's potential to improve early detection and screening processes[46].

6.2. AI for Lung Nodule Detection in CT Scans

The Lung Cancer Mutation Consortium (LCMC) used AI to enhance the detection of lung nodules in CT scans. The AI system, developed by Aidoc, analyzes chest CT scans to identify and prioritize potentially malignant nodules. In a study published in The Lancet Digital Health in 2021, Aidoc's AI system demonstrated a 30% reduction in the time radiologists spent reviewing scans, while maintaining high accuracy in nodule detection. This case study underscores AI's role in increasing efficiency and supporting radiologists in busy clinical environments[47].

6.3 AI for Retinal Disease Screening

The use of AI for retinal disease screening is exemplified by the FDA-approved system developed by IDx Technologies. The IDx-DR system uses a deep learning algorithm to analyze retinal images for diabetic retinopathy, a leading cause of blindness. In a pivotal study published in JAMA in 2018, the AI system achieved an accuracy rate comparable to that of experienced ophthalmologists in detecting diabetic retinopathy. This case study highlights how AI can provide effective screening solutions in settings with limited access to specialist care[48].

6.4 AI-Driven Prostate Cancer Diagnosis

A research team at the University of Cambridge developed an AI model to assist in diagnosing prostate cancer using MRI images. The AI system, trained on a large dataset of prostate MRI scans, was able to accurately predict the presence and aggressiveness of prostate cancer. In a study published in Lancet Oncology in 2019, the AI model demonstrated performance on par with or better than expert radiologists. This case study illustrates the potential of AI to enhance diagnostic accuracy and guide treatment planning in prostate cancer[49].

6.5. AI for Brain Tumor Segmentation

The Brain Tumor Segmentation Challenge (BRATS) has seen significant contributions from AI models for brain tumor segmentation. Teams from various institutions have developed deep learning models that accurately segment brain tumors from MRI scans. For example, a study presented at the IEEE International Symposium on Biomedical Imaging (ISBI) in 2020 showcased a model that achieved state-of-the-art performance in tumor segmentation, providing valuable insights for surgical planning and treatment monitoring[50].

These case studies demonstrate the practical impact of AI in medical imaging across different domains, including cancer detection, disease screening, and image segmentation. They highlight AI's ability to improve diagnostic accuracy, enhance workflow efficiency, and support clinicians in delivering better patient care.

VII. Conclusion

The integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) into medical imaging represents a groundbreaking advancement with the potential to transform healthcare. Through the application of advanced algorithms such as Convolutional Neural Networks (CNNs) and deep learning models, AI has demonstrated significant improvements in diagnostic accuracy, efficiency, and personalized patient care.

AI's applications span various domains, from tumor detection and image segmentation to diagnostic support, showcasing its versatility and impact. Real-world case studies highlight AI's ability to enhance early detection, reduce diagnostic errors, and streamline clinical workflows. These advancements not only benefit patients through more accurate and timely diagnoses but also support clinicians by reducing manual workload and providing valuable decision-making tools.

However, challenges remain, including issues related to data quality, model interpretability, and ethical considerations. Addressing these challenges is crucial for the continued development and adoption of AI in medical imaging. Future directions promise further advancements in model performance, real-time analysis, and integration into clinical practice, paving the way for a more precise and efficient healthcare system.

In summary, the ongoing evolution of AI in medical imaging holds the potential to significantly improve healthcare outcomes. By overcoming existing challenges and embracing emerging trends, AI can continue to advance the field, offering transformative benefits to both patients and healthcare providers.

References

- [1] Aarra, L., et al. (2023). "Streamlined Book Rating Prediction with Neural Networks." International Journal of Engineering and Information Systems (IJEAIS) 7(10): 7-13.
- [2] Abdaljawad, R. Y., et al. (2023). "Fraudulent Financial Transactions Detection Using Machine Learning." 2023 3rd International Conference on Emerging Smart Technologies and Applications (eSmarTA), IEEE.
- [3] Abu Ghali, M. J., et al. (2017). "Expert System for Problems of Teeth and Gums." International Journal of Engineering and Information Systems (IJEAIS) 1(4): 198-206.
- [4] Abu Ghali, M. J., et al. (2018). "An Intelligent Tutoring System for Teaching English Grammar." International Journal of Academic Engineering Research (IJAER) 2(2): 1-6.
- [5] Abu Ghosh, M. M., et al. (2015). "Secure Mobile Cloud Computing for Sensitive Data: Teacher Services for Palestinian Higher Education Institutions." International Journal of Advanced Science and Technology 84.
- [6] Abu Hasanein, H. A. and S. S. Abu-Naser (2017). "An intelligent tutoring system for cloud computing." International Journal of Academic Research and Development 2(1): 76-80.
- [7] Abu Nada, A. M., et al. (2020). "Age and Gender Prediction and Validation Through Single User Images Using CNN." International Journal of Academic Engineering Research (IJAER) 4(8): 21-24.
- [8] Abu Nada, A. M., et al. (2020). "Arabic Text Summarization Using AraBERT Model Using Extractive Text Summarization Approach." International Journal of Academic Information Systems Research (IJAISR) 4(8): 6-9.
- [9] Abuelewa, M. H. and S. S. Abu-Naser (2024). "Classification of Rice Using Deep Learning." International Journal of Academic Information Systems Research (IJAISR) 8(4): 26-36.
- [10] Abuelewa, M. H., et al. (2022). "Rule Based System for Diagnosing Bean Diseases and Treatment." International Journal of Engineering and Information Systems (IJEAIS) 6(5): 67-74.
- [11] AbuEloun, N. N. and S. S. Abu Naser (2017). "Mathematics intelligent tutoring system." International Journal of Advanced Scientific Research 2(1): 11-16.
- [12] AbuEl-Reesh, J. Y. and S. S. Abu-Naser (2017). "A Knowledge Based System for Diagnosing Shortness of Breath in Infants and Children." International Journal of Engineering and Information Systems (IJEAIS) 1(4): 102-115.
- [13] AbuEl-Reesh, J. Y. and S. S. Abu-Naser (2018). "An Intelligent Tutoring System for Learning Classical Cryptography Algorithms (CCAITS)." International Journal of Academic and Applied Research (IJAAR) 2(2): 1-11.
- [14] Abu-Jamie, T. N. and S. S. Abu-Naser (2022). "Classification of Sign-Language Using Deep Learning by ResNet." International Journal of Academic Information Systems Research (IJAISR) 6(8): 25-34.
- [15] Abu-Jamie, T. N. and S. S. Abu-Naser (2022). "Classification of Sign-Language Using Deep Learning-A Comparison between Inception and Xception models." International Journal of Academic Engineering Research (IJAER) 6(8): 9-19.
- [16] Abu-Jamie, T. N. and S. S. Abu-Naser (2022). "Classification of Sign-Language Using MobileNet-Deep Learning." International Journal of Academic Information Systems Research (IJAISR) 6(7): 29-40.
- [17] Abu-Jamie, T. N. and S. S. Abu-Naser (2022). "Classification of Sign-language Using VGG16." International Journal of Academic Engineering Research (IJAER) 6(6): 36-46.
- [18] Abu-Jamie, T. N., et al. (2021). "Diagnosing Cough Problem Expert System Using CLIPS." International Journal of Academic Information Systems Research (IJAISR) 5(5): 79-90.
- [19] Abu-Jamie, T. N., et al. (2022). "Six Fruits Classification Using Deep Learning." International Journal of Academic Information Systems Research (IJAISR) 6(1): 1-8.
- [20] Abumandil, M., et al. (2023). "The Moderating Effect of Social Media Usage on the Relationship between the Perceived Value of the Websites and Motivational Factors on Sustainable Travel Agents." International Journal of Academic Engineering Research (IJAER) 7(7): 9-17.
- [21] Abu-Mehsen, D. O., et al. (2023). "Predicting Audit Risk Using Neural Networks: An In-depth Analysis." International Journal of Academic Information Systems Research (IJAISR) 7(10): 48-56.
- [22] AbuSada, M. M., et al. (2023). "Google Stock Price Prediction Using Just Neural Network." International Journal of Academic Engineering Research (IJAER) 7(10): 10-16.
- [23] Abu-Saqer, M. M. and S. S. Abu-Naser (2019). "Developing an Expert System for Papaya Plant Disease Diagnosis." International Journal of Academic Engineering Research (IJAER) 3(4): 14-21.
- [24] Abu-Saqer, M. M. and S. S. Abu-Naser (2019). "Knowledge Based System for Uveitis Disease Diagnosis." International Journal of Academic Information Systems Research (IJAISR) 3(5): 18-25.
- [25] Abu-Saqer, M. M., et al. (2020). "Type of Grapefruit Classification Using Deep Learning." International Journal of Academic Information Systems Research (IJAISR) 4(1): 1-5.
- [26] Afana, M., et al. (2018). "Artificial Neural Network for Forecasting Car Mileage per Gallon in the City." International Journal of Advanced Science and Technology 124: 51-59.
- [27] Aish, M. A., et al. (2021). "Lower Back Pain Expert System Using CLIPS." International Journal of Academic Information Systems Research (IJAISR) 5(5): 57-67.
- [28] Aish, M. A., et al. (2022). "Classification of pepper Using Deep Learning." International Journal of Academic Engineering Research (IJAER) 6(1): 24-31.
- [29] Akkila, A. E.-D. N. and S. S. Abu Naser (2018). ITS-Tutor for Teaching Rules of Tajweed the Holy Quran, Al-Azhar University, Gaza, Palestine.
- [30] Akkila, A. N. and S. S. Abu Naser (2016). "Proposed Expert System for Calculating Inheritance in Islam." World Wide Journal of Multidisciplinary Research and Development 2(9): 38-48.
- [31] Akkila, A. N. and S. S. Abu Naser (2017). "Teaching the right letter pronunciation in reciting the holy Quran using intelligent tutoring system." International Journal of Advanced Research and Development 2(1): 64-68.
- [32] Akkila, A. N. and S. S. Abu-Naser (2018). "Rules of Tajweed the Holy Quran Intelligent Tutoring System." International Journal of Academic Pedagogical Research (IJAPR) 2(3): 7-20.
- [33] Akkila, A. N., et al. (2019). "Survey of Intelligent Tutoring Systems up to the end of 2017." International Journal of Academic Information Systems Research (IJAISR) 3(4): 36-49.
- [34] Al Barsh, Y. I., et al. (2020). "MPG Prediction Using Artificial Neural Network." International Journal of Academic Information Systems Research (IJAISR) 4(11): 7-16.
- [35] Al Fleet, M. J. F. and S. S. Abu-Naser (2023). "Predicting Player Power In Fortnite Using Just Neural Network." International Journal of Engineering and Information Systems (IJEAIS) 7(9): 29-37.
- [36] Abu-Naser, S. S. and M. I. Alhabbash (2016). "Male Infertility Expert system Diagnoses and Treatment." American Journal of Innovative Research and Applied Sciences 2(4).
- [37] Abu-Naser, S. S. and M. M. Al-Hanjori (2016). "An expert system for men genital problems diagnosis and treatment." International Journal of Medicine Research 1(2): 83-86.
- [38] Abu-Naser, S. S. and M. M. Hilles (2016). "An expert system for shoulder problems using CLIPS." World Wide Journal of Multidisciplinary Research and Development 2(5): 1-8.
- [39] Abu-Naser, S. S. and M. W. Alawar (2016). "An expert system for feeding problems in infants and children." International Journal of Medicine Research 1(2): 79-82.
- [40] Abu-Naser, S. S. and M. Z. Shaath (2016). "Expert system urination problems diagnosis." World Wide Journal of Multidisciplinary Research and Development 2(5): 9-19.
- [41] Abu-Naser, S. S. and R. M. AlDahdooh (2016). "Lower Back Pain Expert System Diagnosis and Treatment." Journal of Multidisciplinary Engineering Science Studies (JMESS) 2(4): 441-446.
- [42] Al Rekhawi, H. A. and S. S. Abu Naser (2018). "An Intelligent Tutoring System for Learning Android Applications Ui Development." International Journal of Engineering and Information Systems (IJEAIS) 2(1): 1-14.
- [43] Al Rekhawi, H. A. and S. S. Abu-Naser (2018). "Android Applications UI Development Intelligent Tutoring System." International Journal of Engineering and Information Systems (IJEAIS) 2(1): 1-14.
- [44] Al Rekhawi, H. A., et al. (2017). "Rickets Expert System Diagnoses and Treatment." International Journal of Engineering and Information Systems (IJEAIS) 1(4): 149-159.
- [45] Alajrami, E., et al. (2019). "Blood Donation Prediction using Artificial Neural Network." International Journal of Academic Engineering Research (IJAER) 3(10): 1-7.
- [46] Alajrami, E., et al. (2020). "Handwritten Signature Verification using Deep Learning." International Journal of Academic Multidisciplinary Research (IJAMR) 3(12): 39-44.
- [47] Alajrami, M. A. and S. S. Abu-Naser (2018). "Onion Rule Based System for Disorders Diagnosis and Treatment." International Journal of Academic Pedagogical Research (IJAPR) 2(8): 1-9.
- [48] Alajrami, M. A. and S. S. Abu-Naser (2019). "Grapes Expert System Diagnosis and Treatment." International Journal of Academic Engineering Research (IJAER) 3(5): 38-46.
- [49] Alajrami, M. A. and S. S. Abu-Naser (2020). "Type of Tomato Classification Using Deep Learning." International Journal of Academic Pedagogical Research (IJAPR) 3(12): 21-25.
- [50] Alamawi, W. W., et al. (2016). "Rule Based System for Diagnosing Wireless Connection Problems Using SL5 Object." International Journal of Information Technology and Electrical Engineering 5(6): 26-33.